

1. Left atrium

2. Aorta,

3. Translocation is the movement of material from leaves to other tissue throughout the plant.

the plant.

4. i) Providing nutrients and oxygen. The lymph provides nutrients and oxygen to such body parts where blood does not reach.
- ii) Absorption of fats (fatty acid). The fatty acid produces as an end product of breakdown of fats in the small intestine are absorbed into the lacteal which is a lymphatic vessel carrying lymph.
- iii) Protection against pathogens. The lymph has presence of lymphocytes which aid in removing any pathogen that has entered the body.